The f508del mutation causes production of an abnormal protein that disrupts transport of water and chloride through the body, the FDA said Thursday in a news release.

I believe the published research that proves CoQ10 to be useful in treating heart failure.